THE COTTON CUT WORM. INTERESTING EXPERIMENTS.

The greatest damage is those a few days after the plant makes it appearance above ground, when the stem is very thin and easily gnawed through by the caterpillar. With the second watering the petrolesm should be applied in the same quantity and manner as previously. After the second watering the plants quickly become strong among to withstand stem attacks, which are the most fatal. The petroleum film on the fields should kill any eggs and newly latched caterpillars with which it comes in contact. This may be called cure, of a value only second to prevention. The method is a very simple one, very cheap, and can be applied by any cultivator. Petroleum can be obtained in any village in Egypt at about U.T. 10 per tim.

simple one, very cheap, and can be applied by any cultivator. Performen can be obtained in any village in Egypf at above [7.1] to per tin. Half a tin will do a feddan, and the sole instructions to the fellah are to make a very, small hole with a pin. The experiments are to be continued in the autumn on the young berseem crop, which is generally badly attacked by Agrotis at Aboukir if the berseem is sown early.

by Agrotis at Aboukir if this berseem is sown early.

From caterpillars collected at Kharaks Mr. Richmond finds that the chrysalis stage is 14 days and the presumption is that there are a succession of broods during the sommer.

It is interesting to note that two of the caterpillars which were being watched were badly attacked by parasites which appeared to be the larve of an Ichneamon fly. Those larve bord their way out of the bodies of the two caterpillars and spun small yellowish white occoons for themselves. Both caterpillars attacked by the parasites died, being unable to turn themselves into pupe. The socoons of Ichneamon flys should on no account be destroyed.

DIVIDEND AND DISSATISFACTION. ROUMANIAN STEAMSHIP COMPANY

Some interesting and successful experiments in trying to combat the cotten out worm (Agrotia Typilan) have been carried out at Kharsha, on the lattle of the Aboutin Company. The Khedivial Agrotional Society sent their entomologists, Mr. Willcoles, to examine a method of drailing with the peet proposed by Mr. Richmond, and we understand that Mr. Willcoles was to impressed with the system employed that he strongly urged the society to arrange for experiments to be carried out in the Bebers province, where this particular past cut in the Bebers province, where this particular past cut in the Bebers province, where this particular past cut in the Bebers province, where this particular past cut in the Bebers province, where this particular past cut in the Bebers province, where this particular past cut in the Bebers province, where this particular past cut in the Bebers province, where this past do the benefit of a great part of the benefic with the system employed that the increase in net profits where the post is based on making the cotton fields distasteful to the female moth, so as too prevent her laying her eggs on the cotton fields distasteful to the female moth, so as too prevent her laying her eggs on the cotton fields distasteful to the female moth, so as too prevent her laying her eggs on the cotton fields distasteful to the female moth, so as too prevent her laying her eggs on the cotton field distasteful to the forthouse where the point is the past of the benefit of the past of the p A Loidon correspondent writes—
Considerable dissatisfaction is expressed in shipping circles at the decision of the directors of the Suce Canal Company to pay a divident of 25 per cent. on account of 1904, as against 25 per cent. for the previous year. It had been hoped that the increase in net profits during the past twelve months would laws been devoted entirely to the reduction of the during the past twelve months would have been devoted entirely to the reduction of the during the past twelve months who had been devoted entirely dividend of the process of the property of the process of the proces

NEW ROUTE TO EGYPT.

The Roumanian Steamship Company has ordered a new steamer for the Constants Alexandris line at the Chantiers de La Loire at Saint Nazare. The vessel, which is to cost for 2,240,000, will be the finest in the company's fleet She is to be named the "Emperor Trajan."

The new line.

Trajan: The new line to Alexandria is an extension of the Constanza-Constantinople-Athens service. This route has lately been brought into prominence owing to the new Constanza-Constantinople cable, which is of great seconomic importance. By this means, telegraphic correspondence will be increased both between Berlin and Constantinople, on the one hand, and between Scotari, Angora, Mossul, Baghdad, Basra, and Fao on the other. As regards mails, if the Constanza notte is adopted instead of the Brindisi line, the distance will be considerably shortened between Europe and Asla Minor, especially when the Baghdad railway is completed. There is now a rapid line of steamers between Constanza and Constantinople, and the Roumanian Gevernment intends to extend the Athens line to Alexandria. The new line to Alexandria is an ex-

M DE FREYCINET'S REVIEW

M. DE FRECUER'S REVIEW.

"The Egyptian Question," by M. Charles de Freycinet, Member of the French Academy, published last week by M.M. Calmann Levy, is a work which might have been entitled. "How the French stateman who has beld office more frequently and longer than any of his contemporaries, is particularly well fitted to speak with authority on this question. In his capacity of Foreign Minister he was called upon to study it deeply, and in July, 1882, he resigned office, after the Chamber by an overwhelming majority lad rejected his proposal to vote a credit of $\frac{4}{100,000}$ framer destined to cambble France to defend the Suec Canal, and to insure uninterrupted and sate navigation through that international waterway while the English were waterway while the English were spied in putting down Arabi Pasha's in-

That vote sounded the knell e Anglo-French condominium, but M. de-cimet does not pretend that the British rument sought that result, t the contrary, the ex-Minister is at con-able pains to explain in his book that the siderable pains to explain in his book that the British foverament was very desirous to obtain the co-operation of France. However, he adds, "At the present time, when France is regenerated, when also has reconstituted her army and her finances, when she has cooquired a powerful ally on the Couttient, and when she pointed with the present of the countries of the countries of the continuity and threatening policy of M. de Bismarck has descended with him into the tomb, and when the legemony of Germany has given way before a just equilibrium of forces, we have difficulty in understanding the susceptibilities. difficulty in understanding the susceptibilitie

Miller in the description in 1882."

At the Frayeinet then explains in the clearest possible language the various phases of the gyptian Question after the crushing of Arabi's election down to the signature of the recommendation of the control of the control of the recommendation of the recommendation and the signature of the Angle French accord, signed on April 8, 1904. The object he had in view in writing this most able work, which constitutes the history of the Egyptian Question from the French point of from Bonaparte's expedition to Egypt to the present moment, is to demonstrate t condominium of England and France is dead and can never be resuscitated, nothing has hap pened and nothing has been done by France or ssession of Egypt.

'It is," he says, "the invariable principle of Larope that Egypt must not belong to any of the great Powers. Its possession insures such advantages that the equilibrium of the State is disturbed by it. In the hands of one single the great Fowers. Its possession insures such advantages that the equilibrium of the States is distorbed by it. In the hands of one single Fower Egypt constitutes a threat for the interest of all others. "Me of Preycinet explains the attitude of Germany in the Egyptian Question by showing it could have been inspired by no other reason than the desire to perpetuate a cause of misunderstanding between France and Great Britain. However that may be, it is certain that from 1952 mutil last year it was France which constantly baseded the opposition to the continued presence of the English in Egypt, and sought by all means to hamper the action of Great Britain in the valley of the Nile, to say nothing of the attempt made by Major, now Colonel, Marchard to enter the country so to say by the lack door. M. de Preyingth is evidently proud that France has thus "mised her voice in favor of right. She alone has prevented a sort of prescription being established, and has not permitted the silence of ally be interpreted as a definite sequinecence."

Towards: the rend of this interesting volume M., de Preyingth it the Powers have done nothing to interrupt the English occupation of Egypt, they have, fortunate the officer to the resulting to interrupt the English occupation of Egypt, they have, fortunes the "tit be Powers have done nothing to nother the continue to conti

The exceptional and transitory position of Great British (to employ the words used by Lord Saisburry) is from the point of view of right in no way modified. The convention of April 1, 1904, has changed nothing. France has probabled herself from taking an initiative, and that is all Troop as from the modern and that is all Troop as from the supering of Legypt or its protector, or invested with a mandate from the Sultan. M. de Freychiet does not know what Entrope trary appearances, he has "no doubt that at some soment in history Rgypt will cease to be under British domination. Expty will cease to be

THE BRINDISI ROUTE.

Travellers who use the Brindisi route to and from Egypt, will regret to learn that the Italian Government at the selevanth hour has decided not to avail itself of the option of taking over the Southern railways. It will be remember that this option remained open till May 20. Much disappointment will be telt in the South of Italy, but the decision is financially prudent. It was understood that this route would be

It was understood that this route would be greatly improved by the Government. The Southern railways—the geographical term is somewhat of a missromer, for a portion of the lines are in Northern Italy—consist of the long piece of rail from Bologas, down the Adriatic coast to Ottanto, 550 miles in length, of which 475 miles are traversed by the weekly Indian mail and are therefore of special interest to British travellers; of the line across the peninsals from Poggis to Naples, 123 miles long; and of various smaller sections of railway, comprising between them 689 miles. This makes a total milesge of 1,342 miles for the whole of the Southern lines.

GERMAN ANGLOPHOBIA

Herrr Basiermann, the National Liberal leader, was the chief speaker at the Party's Congress which was held lest week in Dreeden. His references to foreign politics were characterised by a strong auth-English bias. He accessed England of seeking to saw dissension between Germany and France in Morocco, and observed that tiwas the chief aim of British pilicy to incite. European Fowers to quarrel among themselves. In Eastern Asis, England, and Herr Bassermann, was behaving in a very corriou manner, as the ally of Japan. The said Herr Bessermann, was behaving in a very curious manner as the ally of Japan. The Fiest was winding its way through Prench ports, and England contented berself with sayer protests. The argument employed by Herr Bassermann that England is playing false to France in Morocco, and to Japan in the Par Bast, may now be amounteed every day in the German Press, which is doing its best to get up the ery of "Perfide Albion" in Parts.

GERMANY AND RUSSIA.

Profesor Mendeleyeff, the world-resoursed Russian chemist, he declared to a member of the staff of the "Petersburgskaya Gazeta" that the political movement in the Russian seminaries is being fostered and ted by Germany; "Such a movement can be only to Germany advantage, for the whole of Germany understands very well that Russia is the only impediment in the way of Germany interest to weaken Russia by internal disorders. If German diplomacy is appearedly on Russia's side, then that may be construed as a sign that German diplomacy is appearedly on Russia's side, then that may be construed as a sign that German diplomacy is aware that Russia

EGYPTIAN MINING CONCESSIONS

ACTION MAINEY MISSIES, HAIO AND OLLEY TO CALLEY TO CALLEY TO CALLEY AN ACCOUNT OF DELLINOS.

In the Chancery Division on Thursday last, Mr. Justice Joyes had before him the action of Brown v. I ling and Oxley, by which the plaintiff asked to have an account taken of certain mining concessions granted by the Egyptian Government.—Mr. Warmington, K. o, and Mr. Terrell appeared for the plaintiff; Mr. Neville, K. C., and Mr. Astonio for Mr. Lisig. Mr. Warmington, in opening the case, said the parties were jointly suttled to the concessions. The matter was before his Lordship on a notion for the appointment of a receiver and manage, and the defined dants is all that excounts had been offered and given. As a matter of fact, ho account had been given except what was contained on a sheet of note paper, and that was no account at all. In the result, under pressure it was consented that an account should be taken by a gentleman to be named by the parties, and, falling agreement, by an account had been adjivered that an account the transactions justified not only the action being brought, but the suspicion which the plaintiff had that everything had not been quite straight. His Lordship: Of course, I am not going to which the plaintiff had that everything had not been quite straight.

His Lordship: Of course, I am not going to take an account in Cont.

Mr. Warmington: No, but my client is entitled to have an account. I should like to facilitate matters, and if the defendants will adopt the account of the gentleman appointed in your Lordship's chambers and will file the ordinary affidavit, I shall know how to deal with it.

His Lordship: I should have thought that His Lordship: I should have thought that all the questions would arise on that account. Mr. Warnington agreed. The history of the case began at the beginning of 1901, but before that time the plaintiff and Mr. Oxley had for two or there years been associated together for the purpose of obtaining concessions for mining property in Australia and Egypt. Mat.ers between plaintiff and the Egyptan Government. property in Australia and Egypt. Matzers be-tween plaintiff and the Egyptian Government proceeded exceedingly well, land the former obtained seven concessions. The Government, however, thought that was too many to be vested in one set of persons, and four conces-ce-sions were relinquished. Each summer the plaintiff cause to England to communicate with Oxley, and they arranged for the disposition of the concessions for their joint benefit. At the end of 1900 it cocurred to the plaintiff and Oxley, who was a commany tremoter and finanthe course of the passion of the passion of the course of selected to perform that office, and he came to Egypt in Januar, 1901. One of the companies controlled by Ozley was the British and Colo-nial Agency. Ltd., and he thought he could utilise the company for the purpose of the con-cessions obtained by Haig. The name of the company was then changed to the Egyptian Sudan Minerals, Ltd. Mr. Haig was a gentle-man of education and a collegiate friend of some of the officials, and in March the Govern-ment granted him a concession. The plaintiff desired that the concession should go into the name of Haig, it being part of the arrange-ment that plaintiffs and Oxley's names should not be mentioned to the Government.

ment that plaintiff's and Oxley's names should not be mentioned to the Government. His Lordship asked what was the dispute between the parties.

Mr. Warmington said the concession having been granted, parts of it were sold in con-sideration of £5,000 in one case, £500 in another, and 40,000 shares in so company were to be allotted to Haig for a third part. The purchasing company was the Egyptian Sudan Minerals, Ltd., and in order to show that there were no norder in connection with the above purchasing company was the Egyptian Sudan Minorals, Ltd., and in order to show that there were no profits in connection with the shares. Haig set up that the shares were subject to an option which he gave to Oxley of purchasing them in blocks of 4,000 at 5a each for the first bleck, rising to 12a per share for the first bleck, rising to 12a per share for the first bleck, rising to 12a per share for the first bleck, rising to 12a per share for the first bleck, rising to 12a per share for the last bleck, rising to 12a per share for the last bleck, rising to 12a per share from which had no legal validity. Defendants suggested that the plaintiff should be content with the 4s and not with the price that was actually obtained for the shares from outsiders. They also suggested that certain advertising expenses should be borne by the plaintiff, although the expenses were incurred after the sale.

SUDAN FINANCE.

When Lord Cromer's report was published the Sudan accounts for 1904 had not yet been closed. His Lordship approximately estimated the anticipated results as giving LE 576,000 revenue and LE 629,000 expenditure, thus leaving a deficit of LE 53,000. The accounts have now been closed, and the total revenue in LE 576,013 and expenditure LR 628,931. The original estimates placed the deficit at LE. 578,010 and expendence the deficit at LE. 194,000, revenue LE. 469,000, and expenditure LR. 663,000, so the financial result, of the past year must be considered extremely

The result, however, is in reality not quite favorable as would appear at first sight, om a consideration of the figures given

In the first place, the revenue of 1904 has been swollen, to the extent of L.E. 41,000, by certain extraordinary receipts, which will not recur in future years. Under these circumstanrecut in future years. Under these circumstances, the true revenue of the year may be stated as amounting to LE. 353,000, or LE. 66,000 in excess of the original estimate. In the second place, it will be observed that the expenditure (LE. 621,931), stated in the accounts, is less by LE. 34,000). This diminution in expenditure will, of course, go to swell the surplus, and, consequently, to increase the Reserve Fund of the Sudam Government. On the other hand, inaxmoch as about LE 14,000 of this apparent economy does not represent real savings, but is due to the fact that certain liabilities, incurred in 1904, have not yet been mat, it is clear that when those liabilities are met, the Reserve Fund will, pro tanto, be reduced.

When, however, due allowance has been made for these considerations, it may confidently be asserted that the financial position of the Sadan shows a very marked improvement as compared to previous years.

A consideration of the following figures, which give the amount of revenue estimated, as well as that realised, since the re-compation of the country took place, will show that the improvement has been progressive. The first figures for each year represent the estimated, the second the realised privage.

When, shortly after Lord Kitchener's great victory, the revenue of the Sudan was estimated at the modest figure of L. B. 3,000, few persons could have anticipated that, before six years were over, it would have risen to well over half a million. This result has, however, been achieved. Moreover, it has been attained concurrently with the adoption of a system of very light taxation. The reports of all the local officials go to show that throughout the country the taxes are now collected with ease.

In Lord Cromer's chapter on Sudan finance there is a passage on the principle of taxation in Oriental countries, which deserves quotation here.
